SAW FRENCH GUNS BUTCHER HUNDREDS

PARIS, France, June 24.—Seeing the German troops in mass formation advance in the face of French machine gun fire in which the guns spouted bullets at the rate of 600 a minute, mowing down the Germans like grass in the pathway of a lawn mower; watching an attack upon a big Zeppelin carrying forty-seven men, in which the modern war bird was set on fire by an incendiary bomb and the occupants of the dirigible were burned to death; witnessing an artillery train speeding over the snow-covered highway under the glare of the headlights of automobiles, presenting a picture as realistic as some of those seen in the movies; being decorated with a French military cross, and being knocked unconscious by a shell which killed the man with whom had been talking a minute before the death bearing missile exploded—these are some of the expressions of George Roeder, a Rutgers alumnus, who has been doing service in the American ambulance corps along the western front in the European war during the last year.
